

We're giving blokes a break

If you spotted work going on around a house in Edgecombe Street, Davoren Park, you would have seen Playford Alive's community work in action.

The house is the live training site for a program called Blokes on the Block, organised in collaboration with Playford Alive, City of Playford, Housing SA, TAFE Adelaide North Institute, Centacare, Para Work Links and Kikstart for 12 local men aged between 26 and 50.

The house is being provided by Housing SA as a community capacity building exercise for their customers who live in the local community. The blokes on the course will be completely upgrading the front yard of the property.

The course runs for 14 weeks with the first 11 weeks provided by Kikstart, the training organisation, and the final three weeks of horticultural work by Para Work Links.

The house was open at the end of the landscaping project for a Community Education Day. The bloke's landscaping skills were showcased and celebrated with the neighbourhood.

Andy Considine

Chris Ealing